

The Center for Transatlantic Relations together with Alaya Productions invite you to attend on Thursday, February 9 at 6:00pm the screening of:

“BORDERLAND – Ukraine and the Rebirth of Democracy”

This documentary explores the events of the Orange Revolution through the voices of six Ukrainians.

By exploring the experiences – before, during and after – of six participants in Ukraine’s Orange Revolution, this film poses two important questions: what does it mean to be a People? What does it mean to be free?

“This film provides fascinating perspective on Ukraine’s unfolding experiment with democracy, as well as new insight and appreciation for what it means to live within a democratic society.”

Ruslan Hula, TTIK, Lviv, Ukraine

Please join the makers of the documentary on Thursday, 9 February 2006 at 6:00 pm in the Kenney Auditorium, The Johns Hopkins University-SAIS, 1740 Massachusetts Ave., NW, Washington, DC 20036

Please RSVP to Jeanette Murphy at transatlanticRSVP@jhu.edu (Please put Feb 9 in the Subject) or call 202-663-5730.
